PEPPER CENSURES INSURANCE HEADS

Decries Spirit Displayed by Leading Citizens on Public Affairs.

POLITICS FOR WEALTHY

Rich Men of To-day Fail to Teach Sons Duties, He Says.

POOR ARE INTERESTED

Fault Found With Laws by Club and Business Men Who Lack Public Spirit.

Insurance company presidents in particular and other "leading citizens" in general were severely arraigned yesterday by United States Senator George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylfairs and for failure to teach their sons the duties of citizenship. Senator Pepper addressed the Association of Life Insurance Presidents on the "Contemporary Literature," under the duced cost in such array as to "dismay the most stubborn enemy."

The plans, he said, should by their very existence "be of great weight in the mintainance of peaceful relations," and he notes that "a glance at the estimates involved in the fulfillment of this plan will also give assurance of the relatively insignificant cost of the project as compared to the money wasted during the former mobilization."

Outlining these mobilization plans, he says:

the primaries and you don't want to hold public office.

"The chasm between theoretic and practical citizenship is the gap that separates talk from work; that separates the social club from the party primary.

"Something must be done to impress upon you and such as you the paramount importance of the party primary or things will not be well with the Republic. It behooves the men of wealth and position and their sons to take an active part in politics if the present critical conditions within America are to be successfully met.

Interest is Lacking.

"Schoolmasters tell me that it is extremely difficult to awaken any interest in politics in the minds of the sons of well-to-do fathers these days. Those without privilege are immensity early ages they function politically. Not so with your sons, Why? Because at home they grow up, for the most part, in an atmosphere, and at extraordinarily early ages they function politically. Not so with your sons, Why? Because at home they grow up, for the most part, in an atmosphere, and at extraordinarily early ages they function politically. Not so with your sons, Why? Because at home they grow up, for the most part, in an atmosphere of criticism of public men, and they witness very little in the way of wholehearted effort to improve the broad.

"There is a very serious danger that if this thing continues the sons of privilege in America will degenerate fine little snote who think themselves too good for politics, and all the while they will lack the sense to perceive that they are subject to the content of the present administration in attaining efficiency and economy of operation, and they witnesse to perceive that they are subject to the content of the process of the present administration in attaining efficiency and economy of operation, and they witnesse to perceive that they are subject to the process of the present administration in attaining effici directed at public men in all three branches of the Federal Government, de-fending in particular the Chief Execu-tive. He said that the duties of the President to-day are five times what they were when McKinley was in office.

Senator Pepper also defended senate from the criticism that it produces no results, or "bad results, and that when occasionally we produce a good result we expend too much time in reaching it. I shall neither deny nor admit this charge, but content myself with calling attention to a few facts. One fact is that on the part of most critics there is abyssmal ignorance of what the Senate is and what its business it.

what its business it.

"The fact is that the Senate is a remarkable body in this respect: it size to discharge two entirely different functions. It is in the first place the upper chamber of a national legislative body and in the second place it is a council of ambassadors from foreign States. It is because of the latter function that so many usages and customs.

When his bonds were cut he was unable to move, Four years of utter inaction had made him almost a skeleton and, according to Dr. A. S. Herschfield of the City Health Department, a mental wreck.

To reach the fettered man a squad of police had to fight the mother.

"You can't take him away," she acceamed. "I don't care if you kill me tion that so many usages and customs, wholly related to diplomatic procedure, wholly related to diplomatic procedure, have grown up in the Senate."

In giving the audience advice as to where to start in studying practical politics. Senator Pepper urged those present to specialize first on the Senate, studying closely the men in office and the reasons they possessed the following to get them elected, and then to "think in terms of the Senatorial office." n to "thir

Newburgh Folks Pay Homage to Mrs. Elsie Jackson, Who Feels About Seventy-She Recalls Many Events of Her Younger Days.

Special Dispatch to The New York Heads.

Newburgh, N. Y., Dec. S.—The whole town of Newburgh was invited to call this afternoon and help Mrs. Elsie Jackson of Third street celebrate her 100th birthday, and most of the town accepted. Throughout the afternoon there was a stream of visitors into the house, where Mrs. Jackson sat is the living from and received them. It had been feared that her physical condition would not be equal to the demands of the afternoon, but to-night she said she felt fine and had greatly enjoyed herself.

Mrs. Jackson was born in Ulster county, and during her youth did hard manual labor on the farm. She recalls that when she was on her wedding trip to Washington she talked to Abraham Lincoln. She remembers when it required as long as five days to go from helping with the housework, declaring that she feels about seventy and consistent of the seventy and consistent of th sequently is not really any older than used matches, others contenting that. CORNELL HEAD BACKS ARISTOCRACY OF BRAINS Agrees With Dartmouth's President on Restrictions.

Dr. Livingston Farrand, president of Cornell University, supported the stand taken recently by Dr. Ernest Martin Hopkins, president of Dartmouth, for the gradual restriction of higher education to the "aristocracy of brains" in an address before the Cornell Club at the Waldorf-Astoria last night. Declaring that there is a profound truth in the statement of Dr. Hopkins, Dr. Farrand said democracy cannot continue unless it has sound leadgrship.

"If one thing is preemlinent to-day," he said, "it is a looseness of thinkins, which is exemplified by American statesmen and those in Europe. It has been characterized by sluggishness of thought and indecision."

Shipping Officials to Take Action on Stevedores' Pay.

A general meeting is to be held next month between representatives of the Shipping Board and local operators of Government vessels, it was learned yesterday, to consider stevedoring rates at the port of New York. The contention of some of the operators is that rates under the current schedule are too low, but the board is prepared to introduce further reductions.

Commissioner T. V. O'Connor of the Shipping Board said yesterday that in 30 per cent. of the cases reductions in stevedoring rates were indicated, though in a few instances advances might be justified.
